

PLAN TO ANNEX 7,000 CITIZENS

President of Commercial Club Advocates Extension of City's Area.

HAS OFFICIAL SANCTION

MATTER WILL BE DISCUSSED AT MEETING TUESDAY.

At the meeting of the board of governors of the Commercial club, which will be held at the club's office Tuesday, President W. J. Halloran will advocate the commencement of a movement, which if successful will increase the population of the city by 6,000 or 7,000 inhabitants within the next few weeks, and will give the city an increased area of approximately four and one-half square miles.

It is President Halloran's intention to take up with the board of governors the matter of extending the corporate limits of the city on the south to Twelfth South street, which is conceded to be the logical geographical boundary line, and to make Fifteenth East street the eastern line of demarcation from county government.

If this is agreed by the board to be feasible and practicable at this time, an active canvass will be instituted among the property owners in the district affected, and it is confidently believed that in a short time a majority will have signed the petition for admission. The matter was informally discussed last night by members of the board of public works.

The population in the district which it is proposed to annex is thickly settled, and it is said the residents desire the improvements that will be given them on admission to the city.

County Taxes High.

At this time the special taxes imposed by the county for educational purposes, equal, if they do not exceed, the city school tax levy. With this area added, the residents would have the advantage of the city school system at the same cost which they are now paying for the county educational system, argue the annexationists.

There is a general movement on foot among the residents to secure public improvements, says Mr. Halloran. Side-walks are being laid out, and the gutters of the streets would add greatly to the value of their property. Under existing conditions, such improvements would be inaugurated under the supervision of the city engineer and the board of public works.

President Halloran is of the opinion that with these advantages the inducements will be so tempting that the owners will be glad to come into the city.

MAY HAVE BEEN MURDERED

Army Officer, Husband of Salt Lake Girl, Reported Missing in Havana.

Lieutenant Charles E. McCullough of the Fifteenth cavalry, who four years ago married Miss Jessie Forbes of Salt Lake, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Forbes, is reported missing at Havana, where he has been stationed, and it is supposed that he has been murdered, as he carried a considerable sum of money at the time he disappeared.

Lieutenant Charles E. McCullough is in Salt Lake visiting at the home of his parents at 7 Twelfth East street, and is nearly frantic because of anxiety over her husband's fate. Several messages have been sent to Havana asking for news concerning him, but so far no answers have been received. Nothing is known beyond the disquieting news contained in the dispatches.

Lieutenant Forbes is well known in Salt Lake and since his marriage has visited here with his wife frequently. The last visit was in August last, and he received word while here to go to Cuba. On account of the climatic conditions in Havana, Mr. McCullough preferred to remain in Salt Lake during the winter and intended to join him in the spring.

NEW CONCERN IS LAUNCHED

Union Trust and Investment Company Files Articles—Increases in Capitalization.

The Union Trust and Investment company is the name of a new corporation which has just filed its articles with the county clerk and will carry on a general mining and investment business. It is capitalized at $50,000, in shares of $1 each. Officers are: President, Tom Pitt; vice president, August H. Vogeler; treasurer, Thomas H. R. Cleaveland. These, with W. O. Kay, are directors. The company will control mining property consisting of what is known as the Butler group in the Fabunagat Lake mining district in Lincoln county, Nevada, as well as certain claims and a water power in American Fork district, Utah.

The Utah Lithographing company has filed amendments to its articles of incorporation increasing the capital stock from $15,000 to $25,000, which is divided into 250 shares of $100 each. The Strevel-Paterson Hardware company also filed amendments to articles of incorporation making an increase in capitalization from $200,000 to $500,000. This is to be in 5,000 shares of $100 each, half of which is to be common and half preferred stock.

CONVICT BREAKS JAIL; EMERY'S DEPUTIES ON HIS TRAIL NEAR OGDEN

Above is a circular section of the steel rotary in the county jail, showing the aperture through which Charles Riis crawled. The opening is eight by fourteen inches.

At the right is a sketch showing Riis descending from the window of the jail by means of his blanket. The opening he made by sawing off the bar at this window is but six and three-quarters by sixteen inches.

RIIS' DESCRIPTION.
The description is as follows:
Name—Charles Riis.
Age—26 years.
Height—5 feet 8 inches.
Weight—145 pounds.
Complexion—Dark.
Hair—Dark brown.
Eyes—Light blue.
Build—Slender.
Tattoo on left forearm of panny with stem an inch long. Also vaccination marks on right arm.
Clothing—Dark suit, patent leather shoes, black hat.

Charles Riis, burglar, crackman, yegg, one of the cleverest and most desperate criminals ever captured in Salt Lake, went through the bars of the supposedly impenetrable steel rotary at the county jail as though they were made of putty, some time early yesterday morning, and made good his escape. He is still at large but at an early hour this morning he was seen by Sheriff Short and his deputies near the city jail, where they were close on his heels in the vicinity of Ogden.

The escape of Riis was not discovered until 7 o'clock yesterday morning, when Jailer Burdick and Larson were notified of the escape by other prisoners. They hurried to the jail, where they found that had been occupied by the prisoner, but found that he was gone. A bar sawed off near the bottom of the cell and another sawed off at one of the outer windows told the story of the desperate man's escape.

Riis was arrested Wednesday afternoon by Detective Wheeler as he was in the act of disposing of a valuable fur wrap, stolen by him the night before when he had gone through the residence of J. D. Wood on Brigham street. He was locked up in the city jail on the burglary charge, but was also accused of breaking into nearly a dozen offices in four downtown office buildings the week before. This he did not deny, but only expressed the hope that the police would not be too hard on him.

Was Wanted Elsewhere.
The description of Riis tallied in almost every detail with the descriptions of the man wanted in Illinois for escaping from a train after he had been sentenced to five years in the state penitentiary. Chief of Police Sheets decided that Riis was a desperate criminal and ordered Night Jailer Ripley to keep a particularly close watch on him lest he attempt to escape during the night. Accordingly the jailer visited his cell every twenty minutes throughout the night. The next day after Riis had been taken to the county jail it was discovered that these precautions had been of no avail, for the man of the bars of the cell had been nearly sawed in two by the daring crook.

He waived a preliminary hearing in Judge Diehl's court and was taken at once to the district court, where he pleaded guilty to the charge of grand larceny against him. He was sentenced to seven years in the state penitentiary by Judge Armstrong. To the judge he refused to give his real name or tell anything about himself.

When taken to the county jail about 3:20 in the afternoon he was thoroughly searched by Deputy Sheriffs Burdick and Sharp, who stripped him and went over all his clothing piece by piece, but they failed to find any saws or other tools on the prisoner.

Were Warned by Police.

He was placed in a cell in the rotary, where he was kept until about 8 o'clock that evening when he was taken out and placed in an outside cell on the second floor. George Raleigh, chief of the Salt Lake detective force, had called up and talked to Sheriff Short, asking permission to talk to the prisoner. In order that he might talk to him more freely he was placed in the outside cell. The detective also told the sheriff that Riis had attempted to break jail by sawing through the bars of the cell at the city jail. An hour later Raleigh again called up to tell the sheriff that he would not be placed in the rotary but in the outside cell, but the officer talked with him and he was taken to the cell where he was kept. The sheriff warned him that Riis probably had some saws about his person and that unless he failed to find them thoroughly searched he would suggest that he be done.

The sheriff and his deputies concluded.

WORK PROGRESSING WELL.

E. W. Clark Reports on Ophir Hill Mining Property.

E. W. Clark of the Ophir Hill Consolidated Mining company at Ophir, the property of Senator W. A. Clark, is at the Kenyon. Mr. Clark says that work at that mine and mill has never proceeded more favorably but the company has been greatly hampered of late by the difficulty of transportation. The weather has been unusually bad and the roads have been in such a state as to admit of little or being taken over the nine-mile haul to the railroad.

A good deal of work is being done in the district. The Cliff Mining company, property of his company, has almost completed the mile-long aerial tramway which they have been building and will soon be in a position to do a great deal more work.

LARGE AUDIENCE HEARS SYMPHONY

Concert Is Well Rendered, Though in Spots it Falls Below Standard.

"BALLET" IS BEST NUMBER

WORK OF SOLOISTS NOT ABOVE CRITICISM.

In spite of untoward weather conditions a large audience greeted the Symphony orchestra in the Salt Lake theatre yesterday, and although the program was not as uniformly well given as some others, it maintained fairly well the high standard set by the organization's previous recitals. The initial number, the prelude to Humperdinck's "Hansel and Gretel," was a delightful fantastic conception, full of rich possibilities of harmony, and yet it is quite within moderation to say that the musicians fell short of the best that could have been expected of them. Indeed, without knowing the circumstances, one might be forgiven for suspecting that the rehearsal had not been as fully attended to for this particular occasion as they should have been.

The three other orchestral numbers were the great Schubert symphony in B minor, the "Unfinished" as it is known; the Weber "Invitation to the Waltz"; and the ballet music from Goldmark's "Queen of Sheba." The Schubert symphony with its poetic theme and marvelous tone pictures was well given, but it was reserved for the last two numbers to present the orchestra at its best. In the "Invitation" the musicians and their conductor showed what they can do in a splendidly brilliant rendition of the old favorite, with its difficult orchestration and its trying variations of tempo. Apparently the success of this inspired them to the "Ballet." They have seldom given anything with finer spirit or a more scholarly musicianship, and of a high score.

The soloists were Miss Esther Allen, who made her first appearance before a large audience here in the Bruch violin concerto, G minor. As was to have been expected, Miss Allen showed some indications of nervousness in the introductory movement of the concerto, and she suffered somewhat from too close attention to the conductor's baton, but she played with spirit and intelligence, her bowing was firm and strong, and her technique excellent. Her tone was good, but it was not until after the first nervousness passed away she gave a most satisfactory rendition of the concerto.

Alfred Farrel, basso, the other soloist, sang "Within These Sacred Bowers" from Mozart's "Magic Flute," and Volcan's "The Shepherd's Song" from Goldmark's "Queen of Sheba." Mr. Farrel has a smooth, well cultivated voice of considerable compass and clear intonation. His intonation was excellent. Technically speaking, his rendition was faultless but it lacked color and as a pretentious part of the afternoon's program was something of a disappointment.

A word of thanks is due the orchestra management for the syllabus of the numbers which was published as part of the program. It added immeasurably to the appreciation of the audience, and it should be a permanent feature of the orchestra's appearances.

The eighth and final recital will be given on Monday night, and the orchestra promises a suite by Mr. Shepherd. Friends of the organization hope the orchestra will be able to give the arrangement of the program will sustain its record for finished, artistic work—a record dimmed slightly by some shortcomings in one or two of yesterday's numbers.

where he caught a freight to Ogden. Several deputies were dispatched that day and are now believed to be on his trail. After the discovery that the jail bird had flown, it was also discovered that he had attempted to saw through the padlock on the outside cell in which was confined a couple of hours the night before.

The dragnet was thrown out with the greatest alacrity as soon as the discovery was made to retrieve the lax methods which made possible the prisoner's escape. As soon as the sheriff was notified he sent telegrams to all the principle cities in the country to be on the lookout for the man and all country towns were given telephonic descriptions of Description of Fugitive.

He is 25 years old, five feet eight inches tall, weighs 145 pounds, has dark brown hair, light blue eyes and is smooth shaven. On the left forearm he has a panny tattooed with the stem an inch long. He wore a dark suit, patent leather shoes and a black soft hat.

Emery's Statement.

"The escape of Charles Riis is the first man ever got out of our rotary cell block. It is considered the safest jail built and we have always believed that it was made safe for a prisoner to get out of it by sawing the bars. Experts have told us that a man could not saw his way out. The work of Riis has proved the fallacy of this belief. We have been taught a hard lesson and certainly we will proceed in such a manner that the feat cannot be repeated.

"I will thoroughly investigate the case, though at present I am not in a position to fix the responsibility. The night jailer was on duty on the time and it is his place to watch out for just such an occurrence. The man must have worked steadily for several hours and it would seem that the jailer ought to have heard the sawing of the bars. If his ears had been more alert Riis would probably have not escaped."

BRING THE BOYS TODAY

Today offers an opportunity for School Suit buying which soon will have passed with the closing of the season's stock, so make an effort to get here while the picking is good. Some of the best lines remain almost intact, but the final sweep is being made and all will be moved before the arrangement of the Spring Styles which will be unpacked within the next week or two.

The call is worth while so bring the boys today and have them fitted, in a most pleasing manner, at a cost that does not approach the value of the offering.

Overcoats as well as the Suits are going at the clearance reductions.

DISCOURAGED LITTLE WOMAN AND TODDLER
IN VAIN QUEST OF RECREANT HUSBAND

"J. I. Star—wife deserter."

That's what Chairman Mackey of the board of county commissioners calls him.

The little woman in the faded gray coat, whose pinched face bespoke privation and suffering before she had told a word of her story, called him "Jim."

The 2-year-old youngster in the ragged little jacket, who was always lisping "Pa-pa," as he clung to his mother's skirts. It was the old, old story—not of love—of desertion.

Star is a shoemaker and for the past three years has maneuvered about between Butte, Mont., and Salt Lake, picking up his wife and baby in one city or the other for a few weeks at a time, and then casting them off to live as best they could, sick or well—it apparently made little difference. They came and went to the whims of the shoemaker.

Yesterday Mrs. Star had 20 cents in her handkerchief. She told the county commissioners that for ten days past she had not seen her husband, and that she was alone and in need of help.

"I worried along with baby, eating some days and sometimes scarcely able to walk other days from hunger. Jim never left the city and in six weeks he came back and promised to take care of me if I would go to Butte with him."

"We lived with mother and father there and it was only a few days when he disappeared. I didn't try to find him. Baby and I got along the best we could."

"I was sick for a long time and a few weeks ago I heard that Jim was in Salt Lake. I've been looking everywhere for him, but I guess he isn't here. I've got just 20 cents left and no place to even sleep."

The county commissioners took care of her last night. They gave her a ticket back to Butte, Mont.

AMUSEMENTS

The hazardous loop as exploited by Tom Eck will be seen for the last time tonight and this afternoon at the Orpheum. Next week the bill promises to be of decided merit with a number of favorites in vaudeville on the program.
